

Anthony van Dyck (1599-1641) Flemish artist known for his portraits of the wealthy and royal, was the court artist of Charles I of England (1600-1649). Anthony was a member of the Antwerp, Belgium, artists' guild with Mennonite artist Joos de Momper (1564-1633), and a contemporary of Dutch artist Rembrandt van Rijn (1606-1669), Mennonite sympathizer.

This is an update to my article that appeared in the Mennonite Family History 28 (2009), pp. 181-90. In that article, I introduced Ulrich Dueck's handwritten genealogy charts of West Prussian Mennonite families, provided a brief biography of Ulrich Dueck, and listed key progenitors from chart numbers 001-057. The list of key progenitors continues with this article.¹

A correction to my previous article is necessary. In that article I stated that numbers for the charts were assigned by my associate Sheri Claassen as she photocopied the charts. That was incorrect. Sheri informed me that numbers were penciled on the charts prior to being received by the Mennonite Library and Archives at Bethel College in Newton, Kansas. That being so, all the microfilmed charts available at the 15 sites listed in my previous article will have the same numbers on them. This is an enormous aid in using my list of key progenitors. If a person finds the likely name of an ancestor in my list, then he or she can go directly to that numbered chart on the microfilm. The list of key progenitors thus becomes an abbreviated index for Ulrich Dueck's charts.

Or another option is available. If a person finds the name of an ancestor on the progenitor list, he or she can request a copy of my typed transcript of the chart and/or a copy of the chart that is labeled to match my transcript. These typed transcripts are what I hope eventually to make available to researchers via the internet or perhaps on a CD.

As indicated by Adalbert Goertz's note in the January 2010 issue of MFH, there are other people working on Ulrich Dueck's charts who are making much of the information from the charts available on the internet. Thus far it appears that none of this work by various people is overlapping in nature, but rather complementary.

In June 2010, Sheri Claassen sent copies of Ulrich Dueck's research materials to me beginning with chart #132—this was sent rather than handwritten charts. As I wrote previously, Ulrich Dueck was very good about noting sources for his information on his charts. The listed sources are primarily church records and family history books.

Joos de Momper (1564-1633) of the Antwerp artists' guild beginning in 1581. Joos was the son of Antwerp artist Bartholomaeus de Momper, descendant of Jean de Momper, born Brabant, Holland, in 1418 (Ulrich Dueck chart #113).

Much of the material beginning with #132 is from other published sources, such as newspaper and magazine articles in German, as well as copies of pages from books. Pages numbered 132-140 contain much information about the famous portrait artist Anthony van Dyck (1599-1641). Anthony van Dyck appears on chart 113, and charts 113-130 contain a great deal of early Flemish/Dutch genealogy relative to West Prussian Mennonite families. One example is #132 which is from the Nieuw Nederlandsch Biografisch Woordenboek (Leiden, Holland, 1911), that gives genealogy of the Grauwert family beginning in the early 14th century. A Maria Grauwert of Klein Mausdorf, West Prussia, married Philipp van Dyck (born 1564), listed as a member of the Grosswerder Mennonite congregation of West Prussia in 1592. Philipp van Dyck is a key progenitor on several of Ulrich Dueck's charts.

Any reader seeking information on the charts that I have listed thus far, should please feel free to write to me. Suggestions and/or criticism of the Dueck chart project are also welcome.
